

Visiting Chamber Music Faculty, Conservatory

Violinist Amy Lee enjoys a varied performing and teaching career, equally at home in both orchestral and chamber music settings. Currently, Lee is the associate concertmaster of The Cleveland Orchestra, a post she has held since 2008. Lee spends her summers as a faculty member at the Kent Blossom Music Festival in Kent, Ohio, and performs at various festivals, including the Marlboro Music Festival in Vermont.

An active chamber musician, Lee is a member of the Omni Quartet and Ensemble HD. Founded with fellow members of The Cleveland Orchestra, Alicia Koelz, Joanna Patterson Zakany and Tanya Eil, the Omni Quartet made their Philadelphia Chamber Music Society debut during the 2018-19 season. Innovative and forward-thinking, Ensemble HD seeks to connect with
